

WE NOMINATE

Hans Friedrich Winterkorn, one of the eminent and unsung scientists of the Princeton Community, who over the course of the past quarter-century has been primarily responsible for the development of what is now recognized as a full-fledged branch of engineering science—soil stabilization. While only a handful of laymen are aware of soil stabilization, and science writers play fast and loose with such terms as "plasticizing soil" and "chemically toughened dirt," this new science is dedicated to providing the knowledge and tools for making the best possible use of surface soils and sands in building more and better roads, airports, houses and other structures so urgently needed in many parts of the world.

It was in 1943, when Winterkorn, now 49 years old, was called to Princeton from the University of Missouri, that Princeton University established the first Soil Mechanics Laboratory and inaugurated the first Soil Mechanics Laboratory and inaugurated the first course anywhere on the chemical and physical behavior of soils and their possible stabilizers. Up to that point there had been scattered, slap-dash efforts to improve the qualities of soil employed in the construction of secondary roads but not until Winterkorn and his associates were given hearings—in the face of war pressures—was it realized that soils could be so treated that in the space of several hours the softest and sandiest surfaces could be converted into landing-strips and traffic-bearing roads.

Thrice since V-J Day Winterkorn, the son of a German architect and a naturalized citizen for some 17 years, has attracted wide attention with his researches. In 1947 the Navy, seeking to prevent re-occurrences of the losses sustained on the beaches of Iwo Jima, announced that a series of "Winterkorn experiments" would enable it to transform an ocean beach into a firm landing-area in two or three hours. A year later Winterkorn told the American Chemical Society how advances in soil stabilization would permit low-cost roads, eapable of withstanding pressures better than concrete, while this past week in Washington, D. C., he "chaired" the first international symposium ever devoted to the new science.

A rebuff from the Army in World War II dramatized his pre-eminence in his field. Winterkorn, a consultant to highway authorities on three continents, suggested to the Army that soil stabilization could be of tremendous value in building military bases and road-nets. The Army thought not but sho.; by thereafter turned to three research agencies for help. The report from the first of the favored three was termed "too abstruse." The findings submitted by the other two included bibliographies on the subject, which attributed 50 standard works to Winterkorn and an average of 1.8 to any other authority. It cost the Army time and $300,000 to find that soil stabilization and Winterkorn were synonymous.

For serving as a pioneer and guide in the development of new knowledge; for skillfully organizing and utilizing the assistance extended by representatives of other sciences and disciplines; for insisting that quality, and never quantity, is the hallmark of true success in basic research: he is Town Torres' nominee for

Juveniles in Trouble

Based on the number of crimes committed, Princeton is not faced with the degree of juvenile delinquency that con-fronts many another community in the nation. But in the annual report of Police Chief John H. Smith, submitted to the mayor and council this week, juveniles (those under 18) were listed as involved in these offenses during 1954 a campaign for community support for the new building through February 10.

John P. Wooldridge, general chairman of the drive to raise $750,000 for the proposed "community house," announced this week that in addition to Governor Meyner's address, the volunteers will hear brief remarks from President Harold W. Dodds, officials of the Borough and Township, and Edward D'Arms, a student at Princeton High, who will present the viewpoint of the youth of the community.

In addition, Harry M. Bowser of Gulick Road, a consultant in sales and promotion, and Homer Gould, of the National Council of YMCA's, will outline the aims and

Bus Struggle Renewed, More than two dozen disturbed citizens helped pack Township Hall to overflowing Monday night in or-der to voice once again their ob-jections to the routes planned for the operation of free bus service by proceedings of the Shapping by merchants of the Shopping

Despite the fact that a resolution granting permission for tem-porary operation is a matter of record, a full hour of the regular Township Committee meeting was devoted to objections to the routing of buses through residential streets, narrow streets, to opinions on the Township's entire problem of traffic control, and to the way in which the revised bus routes were adopted.

During the main discussion, no one spoke from the floor on behalf of the proposed routes and at one point 25 hands were raised by those in objection. While there was no motion to rescind the per-mission, members of the Township Committee made it clear that if better routes can be deter-mined, they will be planned be-fore the bus service begins opera-

Committeeman Richard H. Wood said he was "persuaded that the people are very much opposed" in suggesting that study of possible route changes be started immediately. The committee held to its position, bowever, that the temperary operation will half the temporary operation will help determine if there is a basic need for public transportation in the 18-square mile municipality

As yet, the Public Utilities Commission bas not made a de-cision on the application of Tiger Bus Lines to operate the free ervice. The Borough Council has denied permission for the buses to pick up and discharge passengers within Borough limits.

One-Way Streets Created, Monday's meeting brought unanimous approval of an ordinance making traffic one-way on Western Way (westerly traffic only) and Southern Way (easterly traffic only) between Harrison Street and Cedar Lane.

The decision came after tallying of an unusual post card survey of the residents affected. Of 54 ballots mailed, 48 were re-turned, with 24 in favor of one-—Continued on Page 4

Bank activity was also greater in many respects, Mr. Poe revealed. Checking accounts rose by nearly 200 to 8,052, while 555 more savings accounts set the number in this category at 9,906. Cash received and paid out during the year totalled more than $45,800,000, some $3,100,000 more than in 1953.

Loans made to the Princeton area, an important hanking servarea, an important hanking service in assuring community growth, are "in excellent condition" Mr. Poe said, "with no credit problems of importance." He reported that a grand total of $5,982,886,12 is outstanding in mortgages written for 753 persons—nearly half of them under the G.I. Bill of Rights.

Earnings Increased. Bank earnings for the year were higher, the president revealed, "due both to increased volume and the fact that better yields could be obtained in the bond market on our investments." They amounted to slightly over 12% on capital funds, or $74 per share after taxes. A substantial amount of this, Mr. Poe pointed out, is of a non-recurring nature, since it represents profits from sale of securities.

We went to the 16th Annual New Jersey Baby Beef Show and Sale in Atlantic City a few weeks ago, and we couldn't have been more pleased when we saw two members of the same family carry off prizes. We have a very vital interest in families, too. We bought the Potts' prize-winners right on the spot-1995 pounds of choice byby beef. We congratulate Richard, 10, and Phyllis, 15. The old sdage runs: "It's the eye of the feeder that fattens the cattle." And as you can see by their magnificent steers, both brother and sister have a magnificent feeder's eye. We wish them many, many more prize-winners.

McCARTER THEATRE

In contrast to Thursday's open-In contrast to Thursday's opening night performance, when a premiere normally makes most of its news, "Tonight in Samarkand" drew considerable added attention at the McCarter on Saturday. Very possibly for the first time in the theatre's 26-year history, a mating was enpecled 20 minutes.

virus and shortly before noon ing nou.

Saturday found herself utterly world over. Abetting this, among unable to appear, Margaret other things, is Louis Jourdan's Feury stepped in, but because she sartorial elegance: he is undoubthad heen primarily a general understudy for all four female parts, gazer to appear as if he had fallen proceded more than a scant two prey to Nassau Street's top hamadad more than a scant two

The matinee accordingly was regretfully cancelled, with a two-thirds full house filing out after the announcement, but by 8:30 Miss Fleury was ready. While this department was not on hand, reports are that she gave a highly competent performance. McCar-ter's management reports just two promptings during the long, intricate play.

Both management and the company of "Tonight in Samarkand" expressed thorough appreciation for the courtesy and understand-ing extended by Saturday's two audiences, as well as for earlier patience shown Thursday and Friday nights while the unusually complex third act set was heing readied. "Princeton's pleasant at-titude toward both the anticipated and the unforeseen problems encountered in staging a premiere is rarely duplicated in the thra-tre" was the general consensus after the somewhat hectic week-

Because the banks were closed Saturday and insufficient funds in proper denomination were at hand for complete refunds, ma-tinee ticket holders now have a choice. They may either ask for their money back or will be given the best seats in the house for the January 22 matinee of "The Tender Trap." For details of such an exchange and of the recent Broadway comedy coming here, see the advertisement on page 18.

From Princeton, it's Boston for a fortnight, Baltimore for a week and then Broadway about February 1. Expectations are that "Tonight in Samarkand" will receive a mixed but generally good re-ception, particularly if further pruning from the French original ception, particularly if further a continuous 48 hours before pruning from the French original opening night. "Tonight in Sais prudently accomplished at the markand" is a large-scale undernext two way stations.

To cater to the Gallic nature, the play takes frequent detours down the highways and hyways of gentle philosophizing. It gaily introduces characters who not only devote considerable time to such a traditional French pastime, hut whose presence onstage lends little or nothing to advancement of the plot. It was not, accordingly, due entirely to a 27-minute intermission while the third act set was hung that Thursday night's performance ended at 11:55.

in the theatre's 26-year history, a matinee was cancelled 20 minutes after curtain-time and when the evening show went on, the femnine lead was played by the understudy.

Jacques Deval's drama deals with pre-destination in a manner that should serve to hold the at-tention well, particularly when pace and timing become topflight. Based on the legend of a lethal lady who was surprised to see a certain man in one city because she had an appointment with him that night in Samarkand, the story builds well to a climax that hinges on a 13-day difference be-tween the Christian and Greek Orthodox calendars, Foretold for death on her birthday (March 24) when she is scheduled to sail on a liner destined to strike a floating mine, Miss Montealegre (as as lady tiger-tamer) fulfills her fate when she goes with her husband on April 6. The latter date is March 24 on the calendar that governed her birth in Greece.

Mr. Jourdan (costumes not-withstanding) is both appealing and accomplished, lending polished charm to the romantic role of the carnival swami in which he heads the cast. In some contrast, Miss Montealegre seemed a touch ill at ease in her role; she had stepped into it to replace Mai Zet-terling, who walked out on the first day of rehearsal, but still presumably had ample time. Past the premiere and her attack of virus, however, she can be expected to provide Mr. Jourdan with the quality of acting he deserves from a feminine lead.

The supporting cast was completely competent, if occasionally extraneous as previously mentioned. The sets were unusually artistic and complex, twice requiring complicated changes within an act and keeping the stage crew in the McCarter for almost at Yale and Penn at Dartmouth Friday; Cornell at Columbia, Penn at Brown and Harvard here on Saturday. The leaders must ob-viously each win twice to keep from being replaced at the top of the ladder.

Trotman Sets Record, Marvin Trotman set a new Princeton High School scoring record in Long Branch last Friday night when he tallied 44 points for the Little Tigers, but the markers were in vain as the shore team downed the Blue and White, 91-77.

With 17 field goals and 10 foul set, Trotman broke the record set in 1950 by Clyde (Buster) set in 1950 by Clyde (Buster) Thomas, who tallied 38 points. Trotman's season total is now 133 points in four games.

Long Branch players Dick Barhour and Jim Jerri each went over the 20-point mark in pacing the shore team to its second vic-tory in four outings. The PHS loss was it second against two tri-

To Protect Your Child After Treatment:

Most of us know the role that moisture plays in the treatment of a child's upper respiratory ailments. For "All-Nighter" humidiliers are in coostant demand for the treatment of croup and coughs due to colds.

But what about AFTER treatment?

How many of us realize the importance of home humidification then? To protect your child against the winter-heated dry air.

Remember, adequate huntidification (35% to 40%) helps maintain healthy nose and throat membranes—a blockade to cold-causing organisms.

Therefore, when your physician recommends the use of a vaporizer, why not purchase the appliance that will serve TWO purposes. The "All-Nighter" does just that. It can be used as a vaporizer during treatment and as a home humidifier AFTER treatment. See us for full information on home humidifiers designed for any type of heat.

The All-Nighter, $8.95
The Half-Nighter, $4.95
